

JUANES AND SANTA ANNA.

Of these two men, now the most prominent in the affairs of Mexico, the history and characters are very different, and they illustrate the essential identity of blood on which the two great North American republics began their political existence. Benito Juarez is of Indian (or Aztec) blood and in his early life was an exile from his country, engaged in mercantile pursuits on a small scale, at New Orleans. In that city he is still highly esteemed, and the liberal papers of New Orleans are enthusiastic in his support. Returning to his native country, he entered into the liberal cause with earnestness and zeal, and raised himself to a position of influence by able and patriotic efforts to restore stability to the government and make Mexico like the United States, where he had not only followed his business vocation, but had learned the principles of government which have made this country prosperous and great.

When Maximilian came to Mexico, Juarez was President, and placed himself at the head of the people, whom he gathered around himself with a unanimity which had not for a long time been witnessed in that country. For some time there was hope that the pressure of a foreign invasion would cause a cohesiveness of the Mexican people so firm and lasting as to repel the invasion and secure permanent tranquillity. But the old feuds broke out again, and when Juarez's constitutional term expired other claimants for the presidency arose, and the hope of union disappeared. Contentions and divisions among themselves occurred while the foreigners were in the country in full force. Such is the present situation of affairs, Juarez firmly holding his position while others are hoping to displace and succeed him.

Santa Anna, now an old man, has long been a prominent actor in the Mexican drama, and to the last has regarded himself as the rightful deliverer and ruler of Mexico. When Maximilian was declared Emperor he at once gave in his adhesion to his cause and offered his services in support of the Empire. While in this country, during the last year, he issued a proclamation acknowledging Juarez as President and pledging himself to serve under him in driving the foreign invaders from the country. His services were not accepted as his sincerity was not trusted, and he was threatened with death in case of his appearance on the soil of Mexico. His recent landing there on being involuntarily taken from an American vessel, is known to our readers. But his fate since being carried ashore is unknown to all in this country. Reports are contradictory; one day it is stated that he has been shot, and the next that he is still alive.

Santa Anna is a man of decided ability and unquestioned bravery; and it may be that his attempted entrance to Mexico was prompted by patriotic impulses. Indeed, he has shown an ardent love for his country in a variety of ways, not the least of which is his leaving the quiet of his retirement at St. Thomas where he was surrounded by the comforts of wealth, to enter, in his old age, the troubled agitations of a new political and martial campaign. Of the nature of his aspirations we cannot judge; but, if his life has been sacrificed, we have the satisfaction that one serious obstacle has been removed from the settlement of the difficulties which have so long disturbed that unfortunate country.

RECONSTRUCTION.—The National Intelligence says: "It is understood in well informed circles that the President will cheerfully and promptly enter upon the execution of the Reconstruction act of last session of Congress, giving, if occasion requires, explicit instructions to the commanding general. The utmost care will be taken to guard against any possible collision with the generally understood wishes of Congress."

"It is believed, however, all the Cabinet are agreed upon the principle, that the President of the United States under the Constitution has no power to exonerate himself from ultimate responsibility for all executive action under the government to the extent he shall take care the laws are faithfully executed."

"Should a crisis unfortunately force itself or be forced upon him, in which he must consent to be disarmed or supplanted from his constitutional jurisdiction, or else acquire his commands under the law to be implicitly obeyed by the power of the army and navy, it is necessary, there is, we are satisfied, no authority for saying what line of action the administration would adopt."

CHOLERA IN THE OLD WORLD.—The official bulletin published in the island of Sicily shows that between the 11th and 19th of last month there were nearly twenty-two hundred deaths from cholera in the two provinces of Girgenti and Caltanissetta. The distress of the people is very great.

A letter from Tunis, dated June 20th, states that the disease has hardly proved as fatal as usual there this year, but along the whole coast ravages have been very severe. Several Europeans have died of cholera at Tunis, and at Sfax the French Vice Consul and another European have been among the victims. The alarm is very great among the inhabitants of the Barbary States, and all the people who are able to get away are hurrying off.

MAXIMILIAN'S WIDOW.—A Real Spectator. A Vienna paper gives a most melancholy account of the Empress Carlotta. Her insanity has become confirmed and so violent that she cannot be left alone for a moment. She is constantly endeavoring to destroy herself. At rare intervals she has some moments in which she declares, "I do not want to live. I prefer death to such a life as this. Where is my husband? Shall I never see him again? No, no; he is dead, and yet I still live." Not a quarter of an hour passes but the unhappy Princess demands news of her husband. Her bodily health has suffered severely, and it is very doubtful if she will survive her husband long.

George Alfred Townsend in an appreciative letter from Newport to the Boston Post says:

"We have fallen into the habit of speaking and writing of all rich people in the Summer places as rich parvenus, burnt up with emulous profligacy, material in their joys, hollow in their consciences. This is a deplorable error, begotten of our own gossip and envy. The mass of wealth is expressed at Newport, altogether the most refined watering place in the Republic, by tasteful architecture, gracious homes and virtuous lives. There is no such place in Europe, and no people superior. Shoddy and shabby one summer here, and are either cured or take flight. There is no public gaming in town; prize fighters and fire-dealers avoid the city. Only one attempt was ever made to establish a house of ill fame here, and in this wise:

Anna Altaba, Esq., frisky, full of money, brought her lady's maid and put her in a cottage to which he repaired, in the intervals of golfing, yachting, and outraging most of the Commandants. It was a small reproach to Newport, but there is little gossip here and a largeness of mind, so that the matter was tolerable because the parties were seldom together in public. But Altaba got married at last, finding, as he said, that what is secret is disgusting. His companion went off, provided for, and a year or two ago, returning, she set up a palace of wretchedness, and her boarders made themselves familiar upon the Avenue. The police quickly broke up the establishment. Then she demanded the right to keep a boarding house, but this was soon found to be a hoax in disguise, and then the woman was formally cited to give bonds and come to trial. She went boldly to Anna's house, where she dwelt discreetly with his wife, and asked him to be her bondsmen under threat.

"I don't know you?" he said, after the prescribed way of the world.

So the poor, bold, sin-smashed cast-away left Newport. It is to be hoped forever. They left her depart without more rebuke or punishment.

On Sunday I went to Trinity Church, the place of worship of the wealthy cottagers. There were superb handbags, combs and glass touches at the door, horses slack as if bred by Neptune, who had come to church in his chariot. The music of elms and airs was tender and beautiful. It may be that rich people get to heaven through the eye of a needle, but they have a perfect triumphal gate of it here, and the taste of the church and its services was almost religion.

I see among the residents here this Summer, Harbath, the Peruvian Minister; Sidney Brooks, of Boston, said to be possessed of four millions; General T. W. Sherman, of Charleston expeditionary fame; Charles J. Peterson, magazine editor at Philadelphia; J. W. Chandler, brother-in-law, I think of the New York Astors, and member of Congress; Samuel M. Davis, of Mississippi, a relative of Jefferson Davis; George Francis Train, whose hotel at Omaha is kept by Coxworth, of West Point; the widow of Phil Kearney, the one-eyed devil; Mrs. Lazarus, one of several Hebrews quarreling here. General Grant is to visit Senator Morgan very soon at Newport.

Also, a correspondent of the New York Evening Post says that certainly Newport is one of the most attractive watering-places in the world, and this summer it is especially so. Fort Adams, which is one of the strongest and best mounted of our sea-lake fortifications, is now open to visitors, who are entertained Tuesday and Friday afternoons by the beautiful music of the post band, which is said to be one of the best in the service. For those who are fond of boating and sailing there is not a more delightful harbor in the country than this, while the sunsets, as seen from the west side of the town across the harbor and over the islands and low stretch of the Rhode Island shore, are beyond description grand and beautiful.

Boston Yacht Club.—The members of this Club are full of active preparation for their proposed excursion. The arrangements at present are to sail from Gloucester Saturday evening, August 3d, and proceed on the following day to the Isle of Rhé, from which point they will go to Portland, where a grand ball will be given them by the citizens, after which their programme includes Mount Desert and Belfast. The fleet will probably consist of 15 or 20 sail, under command of Commodore Follett.

Mr. Hancock, the President of the New-York and Troy Steamboat company, has publicly announced that, while he will not hazard the lives of passengers, nor allow his boats to be used for anything but legitimate business, he is nevertheless willing to make a test of equal to his rivals. He therefore gives a challenge, and offers to run the Connecticut against the Drew, from New York to New Baltimore and return to New York, without passengers or freight, and stake $3000 on the result.

The Round Table, in alluding to the threatened invasion of Mexico, as filibusters say, "the pliant magnanimity who, for nearly half a century, have drenched that beautiful land with blood and back distance to the progress of the civilized world, may well give place at last to the aspiring thinkers, and workers of our own race who have long been watching for the time when such a great movement would be effected with the best chances and the least probability of interference from without to effect its permanence."

A proclamation has been posted up throughout Canton forbidding the printing of Chinese newspapers by foreigners. It has put a temporary stop to the existence of a Lat Pau published under foreign editorship there. This document purports to be an imperial order transmitted by the Governor General of the two Kwans (Kiang-si and Kiang-su) to the Governor of Canton.

Steamboats are running on the Hudson River at the rate of nineteen miles an hour, almost usual railroad time. The passenger enjoys the racing, but life insurance companies think if these contests are allowed to continue very long somebody will be hurt.

Local News Items.

Newport, July 22, 1907.

To the Editor of the News:

In your issue of today you copy part of an article from the N. Y. Tribune, in which the writer says—after complaining of the "charges at the Ocean House"—"I saved up a month's salary on the Tribune, and invested in a launch and an hours drive on the Avenue. I had a good deal of magnificence, but I almost to myself. With the exception of George Francis Train, Mrs. Belmont and her exam. points, George Olinwood and myself (I) there is no one worth mentioning in Newport." As a resident of the town, and a contributor to the matter of the harbortown, of which I have no doubt for probably a six-decade drive would clean the pockets of the writer, if his salary was commensurate with his brains. Again in the same issue in an article headed "Martha's Vineyard yesterday," "Martha's Vineyard has become in fact one of the most popular watering places on the coast, and probably has more guests than any other,"—and at other times during this season you have published articles laudatory of other summer resorts, yet scarcely a word in favor of our own beautiful, superior Newport. As a citizen, and one considerably interested in the summer trade, I must say you are taking the wrong course to enhance the interests of your subscribers, and advertisers, and one which if continued will tend to produce the result so much wished for by the correspondents of the "City" and other correspondents a bona fide love for the use of your organs.

The statements made by paid runners for other summer resorts, of "expecting" "landlords" "extortion" "high prices" in Newport, should be contradicted by our own press, who know that the same accommodations, drive, bathing, sailing and other amusements, cannot be purchased cheaper anywhere, and in fact, no other summer resort has all these advantages combined.

The pieces at the Ocean, Atlantic, Acquidneck, and other houses is no higher than prices at Sandwich, Niagara, Long Branch, Cape May, the Mountains, or other resorts. Carriage hire is as low as anywhere, and I think none of these places can turn out such stylish trim, handsome carriages, neat looking and obliging coachmen, as can be furnished by the stable keepers of Newport.

We publish the above from our esteemed friend with pleasure, though we think the writer manifests an undue readiness on several points. All readers of the News will bear witness that the assertion that we are unfriendly or even indifferent to the interests of Newport as a summer resort, is very far from being correct, and if no other evidence can be produced than that we call a Methodist Camp meeting "a watering place" and peddle a large advertisement at the coming season, we think we shall not bear a very heavy condemnation. As to the article in the City we can only say we regarded it as a good joke and copied it as such. Of course W. H. does not take the author as writing seriously, or as expressing any one of his readers so unkindly a bias. Perhaps the misconception arises at this point. At best there can be no harm in letting our own people know what other people say about us. We have published a large number of articles on Newport as the chief watering place of America, and have no doubt it will maintain its well earned supremacy.

ANNOUNCEMENT.—On one of the streets through which a large proportion of the persons arriving at this city or leaving it are obliged to pass, is a stable close to the sidewalk. The sidewalk is a very convenient place to spread the horses' bedding to take the sun and air, and hundreds of persons are erected with its odor and crowded in a narrow position of the walk as they come or go. Their first and last impressions are thus of a very stench character.

FOUR DAYS.—A visit to Fort Adams yesterday at the hour when Prof. Speck's Band is announced to play showed a very large attendance of citizens and strangers. From seventy-five to one hundred carriages with their occupants were present, and it was evident that the crowd enjoyed the recreation in the highest degree. We have seldom seen a finer exhibition of gay equipage than are present this season, and all are glad to know that the number is daily increasing.

PROFESSOR.—Hon. Springfield Colfax arrived in this city yesterday afternoon and became the guest of Thomas Coggeshall, Esq. In the evening, quite a number of gentlemen called upon him and were entertained with the well-known hospitality and hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Coggeshall.

Hon. SENATOR MORGAN, of New York, arrived this morning and proceeded to his summer residence on Narragansett Avenue.

A VERMONT SOLDIER.—We learn that one Sergeant Samuel Morrison registered in the U. S. Regular army yesterday receiving his papers in due form. He has been a soldier sixty-seven years, and for fifty years he has been connected with the American service. Sergeant Morrison is now eighty-two years of age and has charge of Fort Walden. We challenge the world for another case like it.

The Fall River News says that Simon C. Hill, formerly of that city, a recent graduate of the Divinity School, Philadelphia, has received a call to become the pastor of Emanuel church, Newport.

MISDEED.—There will be music in front of the Atlantic House this evening from 8 until 11 o'clock by the Band from Fort Adams. The Company will of course have a "ho!"

THE BOSTON ISLANDER.—We are not surprised to find that the Cabot Organ has been made by Messrs. & Heald is rapidly winning their way into the families as well as into the churches and musical societies of the land. They are meeting with a steadily increasing demand, and we think the time is not far distant when the great majority of those whose circumstances will admit of it, will be supplied with the Cabot Organ as well as with the piano forte, so as to have the best means at command for performing every variety of domestic and social music.

ROOMS TO LET.—THREE very agreeable rooms at the QUINCY HOUSE, not yet occupied for the season. Also one suite in the BUTLER HOUSE. Apply at QUINCY HOUSE.

CONNECTION.—We are requested to state that our reporter was in error yesterday in stating that the large Harriet of Boston which put in here on account of sickness of the crew was in a leaky condition. Such is not the case the only difficulty growing out of the condition of the crew.

REMOVED.—The office of the Daily News has been removed to No. 13 Church street at which place the editors and publishers may hereafter be found.

News Miscellaneous.

U. D. Greene, Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Rhode Island, warns the Masonic fraternity against a graduate of the "Treaton, New Jersey, State prison, where he has served out a three years' sentence for bigamy, calling himself John Elphinstone Dr. Hunter, alias Dr. George Levi, but whose real name is George Lewison, and who has for several months past been imitating upon the charities of the Masonic brotherhood.

Cubel Shepard, superintendent of the Minnesota Central Railroad, informs the St. Paul Pioneer that the rails are laid six miles south of Owatonna, and that track-laying is progressing northward from Cresco on both ends at the rate of a mile and a half a day. There is no doubt of a through railroad route from St. Paul to Prairie du Chien before the close of navigation.

The strange spectacle of a fight between two elephants occurred in the streets of Lewiston, Me., the other day. They called each other hard names with their fingers and feet, and finally, and gave and received kicks on the shins without entry.

A private letter from a trustworthy physician of Memphis to a citizen of New Albany, according to the Cincinnati of that city, conveys the information that the number of deaths from cholera and kindred diseases in that city average twenty-five per day.

GRAY HALL or FISH.—Capt. David W. Thomas of Portsmouth, R. I., sailed over six thousand pounds of "Springdale," or sea trout, Monday, about 9 o'clock P. M., in a steamer river just below the Stone Bridge. These fish resemble the salmon in shape, and weigh from two to ten pounds. They have been rather scarce for the last few years, but are again becoming quite common.

GENERAL GRAY has not yet been into Hox & Campbell's, to try their Endless, but those who of others have, and they will tell you that they can't be best.
